Selectmen's Note

Swimming anyone? Keeping it safe at Flying Pond.

Dan Onion, Health Officer, has done three water tests at the Flying Pond Landing on Rt. 41. The first test showed a high number for EColi. The next two showed very low numbers (1 and 5) – virtually negative. Going forward, it will be our (town) policy to test the water at the beginning of every summer.

MINUTES OF THE REGULAR MEETING OF THE VIENNA PLANNING BOARD HELD JUNE 26, 2013

The meeting convened at 7:00 PM at the Town House; regular members present were Waine Whittier, Alan Williams, Ed Lawless, and Creston Gaither. Minutes of the May 22 meeting were read and accepted.

Several general permitting issues were discussed.

The meeting adjourned at 7:30 PM.

Nanou Resigns from Planning Board

Lionel Laliberte has resigned from the Planning Board due to medical reasons. We all know him as Nanou. Nanou has served on the Board for over a decade. He has been a dedicated member and made many difficult site visits, traversing brooks and fallen trees even when his knees told him no. He was a quiet but reliable member and his years of experience in the construction industry helped him understand the potential consequences of proposals presented to the Planning Board. He provided all of this service without compensation. We his colleagues, Alan, Creston, Ed and Waine, wholeheartedly appreciate his help and camaraderie and will sincerely miss him at our meetings.

NOTES FROM THE TOWN CLERK

I would like to apologize to everyone for the lateness of the tax bills. There were quite a few changes to be made to accounts. We also had to wait to see what the revenue sharing and the school budget would be before we could commit the taxes. As soon as the taxes were committed to me on Wednesday May 29, I worked very hard to get them out to you. They were at the post office on that following Monday. The selectmen said that we couldn't change the due dates because we had voted them in at our town meeting.

I want to say thank you to everyone for making the transition into my positions a success. The hours seem to be working for most. I will continue to make appointments for those of you who can't make it during my hours. When I took on this job, I vowed that I would have a separate place to perform my duties other than my home for your convenience as well as mine. I said that it would be handicapped accessible. I am happy to say that the trailer I bought is almost complete. With the help of my family, the trailer and ramp was completed this past weekend. We still have painting and organizing to do but most of it is done. I am enjoying being your clerk and tax collector.

My hours:

Tuesday and Thursday: 5:00 - 7:00, Wednesday 9:00 - 12:00 and 12:30 - 5, and the last Saturday 9 - 12

FROM THE HEALTH OFFICER

Distracted Driving

Let's face it; we are all distracted drivers some of the time. I tie my tie or floss my teeth sometimes when I'm driving to work and I've seen others even reading newspapers! But the explosion in cell phone use has markedly increased the frequency and consequences of distracted driving. Studies show that a driver simply talking on a cell phone has a 4-6 times higher risk of having a crash as the same person talking, and is at the same risk as one driving with a blood alcohol level of .08 g/dL. Texting while driving is 5 times worse; people texting when driving are 25 times as likely to crash. Studies show that while texting, drivers have their eyes off the road 4.6 of every 6 seconds! Not surprisingly national data from 5 years ago showed 2000 fatalities annually associated with texting, 16% of the total auto crash deaths. But since many more people use cell phones than text, more die from simply using their cell phones. Hands-free cell phones may not reduce the risks much.

FROM THE HEALTH OFFICER.... CONTINUED

I've found myself sliding toward the edge of the road and hitting the rumble strip a few times even when I'm using a hands-free phone and able to dial numbers by voice. I bet many of you have too, right? But most drivers using cell phones don't have the luxury of such equipment. The risk is made worse when cell phone use is added on top of other impairments, like alcohol intoxication, illicit or prescription drug use, fatigue (especially from obstructive sleep apnea, usually in obese snorers), inexperience (teenagers), eating in the car, night driving and/or bad weather conditions, unfamiliar roads, kids in the back seat fighting, impaired vision, or your GPS talking to you while your cellphone rings.

So how can you protect yourself from these risks?

First, be careful! Minimize your use of cell phones and don't text while driving at all. Insist your family follow these rules too. New drivers should not use phones at all for the first several years they drive. Use Bluetooth hands-free systems if you can afford them.

Secondly, and because precautions you take don't reduce your risk of being hit by another texting or cell phone-using driver, support reasonable legal restrictions. 10 states prohibit hand-held phone use while driving, 32 states do so for novice drivers, and 39 ban texting for all drivers. Maine does restrict texting for teens by law. However such laws are difficult to enforce and sometimes, like seat-belt laws, can only be enforced if a driver is stopped for another violation. Phone records can serve as an enforcement tool like blood alcohol levels can for drunk driving. But it is cumbersome. In the future, technology fixes, like cars that disable phone use when in motion may be possible, but how do they distinguish the driver from a passenger?

This is a big and increasing problem that will require all drivers to consider their answer to these important questions: how will you reduce your own and your family's risks and how can you support reasonable new legal constraints on distracted driving.

VIENNA HISTORICAL SOCIETY - WORKING WOMEN

Vienna Historical Society Mounts Exhibit on Working Women

The Vienna Historical Society has assembled an exhibit paying tribute to the working women of Vienna and Mount Vernon during the first half of the last century. "We Did It! Working Women of Vienna and Mount Vernon 1900s to 1950s" pays tribute the many facets of "women's work" in small town Maine.

Working women, an obviously redundant phrase, ran the gamut of types of work, and the historical society tries to cover that range of teachers, telephone operators, writers, dressmakers, clerks, innkeepers, musicians, and so much more. Recognizing that many women did not work full time jobs outside the home, but that they nevertheless supplemented the family income through other means, as well as contributed to the good of the community, we also include farm women in the display.

"Women at Work in Vienna and Mount Vernon 1900s to 1950s" will run every Saturday from 11:00 am to 1:00 pm, July 13 through the end of October at the historical society building on Highway 41 in Vienna Village. Over a hundred women are represented in this presentation with a photo and description of their work. There is no charge and everyone is invited to see the plethora of work undertaken by our grandmothers, mothers, sisters and aunts.

A group of Vienna women enjoy a day of hair care at a friend's house. Lucinda Lord in the chair, and Mirjam Wood in the background.

DR. SHAW MEMORIAL LIBRARY NEWS

Summer always flies by – never enough time to read all the books we want, and always we are in a flurry of activity – oh, but what wonderful activity it has been!

We kept our story and craft time simple this year, and that has worked beautifully for our participants. We've had stories about dinosaurs, insects, and turtles, worked on various crafts together, and had great interaction and conversation between our very young members and parents, volunteers and staff. It is loads of fun to see everyone stomping their feet and growling loudly as Alice directs everyone on how to act like a dinosaur! Thanks to Alexis and Jillian for their assistance and their spirit (and Jillian's wall art is amazing!), to Kathy Brown for leading one of the sessions, and to parents and grandparents who always enthusiastically join in.

We have a whole host of people to thank for putting together our annual Book Sale, during some of the hottest, most humid days of the summer. Many thanks go to Betsy Corning, Pat Rawson, Jon Olson (always), Pat & Linda Stanton, Deb & Len Roe, Donna Williams, the Zacker family, Sherene Gilman, Diane Lee, the Kuhns family (and thanks for the use of the dolly!), Sydney Cameron, Mitzi Robinson, Margaret Barrows and Alexis, Minerva Challaby, Maisie Libby, Lew Allen, Barbara Kennedy (and she dragged a friend along to help), and Libby & Alan Harville. I'm probably missing a few people, and I apologize for that – I'll blame the heat! The sale itself was fun, as always. Great visits with people, and people took bags of books home, to sit quietly and read by the lake or under a tree, while we all waited for cooler air to arrive.

Next up is our annual Community Poetry Reading, Tuesday, August 6, at 7PM, at the Community Center. This, along with our Bird Walk, has become a well-attended event. Please come join us as friends and neighbors read or recite something from their favorite poets. Feel free to read something, or just listen to others. Some choose beloved authors like Frost or Oliver or Tennyson or Collins, others read something they've written themselves. Light refreshments follow. It's a great evening. Thanks to Pat Onion, who helps pull this together each summer.

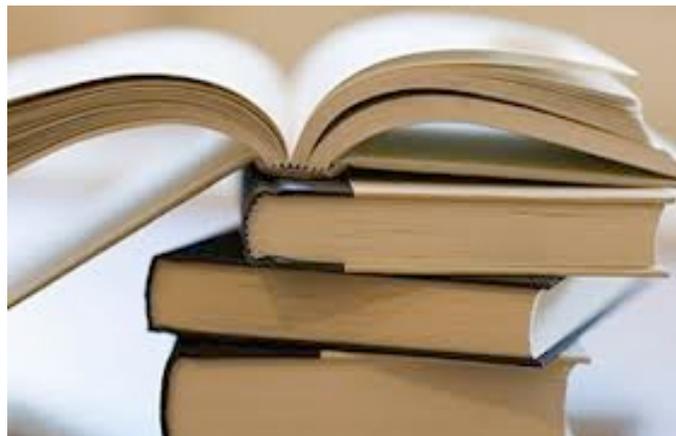

Our extra summer hours on Wednesday mornings (9-12) will continue till the week before Labor Day.

At the end of August, KVBA picture and chapter books will be delivered to Mt. Vernon elementary school so students can continue reading once the school year commences. We are always glad to share the collection with Mrs. Brown at school, it means our summer kids and Vienna residents get to read them, and the Mt. Vernon children are reading all summer. We also have parents of toddlers checking them out, for family read-alouds. This summer these books have been flying off the shelves – which means it is a good, varied selection of titles. Come check some out!

I'm glad the sky is painted blue,
 And the earth is painted green,
 With such a lot of nice fresh air
 All sandwiched in between.
