PLANNING BOARD NEWS

MINUTES OF THE REGULAR MEETING OF THE VIENNA PLANNING BOARD HELD DECEMBER 3, 2014

This meeting was held in lieu of the previously scheduled November & December meetings, which were cancelled in view of the holidays. Creston had advertised this change.

On November 24 Creston and Waine attended a Board of Appeals (BoA) meeting at which said Board established its procedures for the GTP "cell tower" appeal.

Tonight's meeting convened at the Town House at 7:00 PM. Regular members present were Waine Whittier, Alan Williams, Ed Lawless, Austin Harrell, and Creston Gaither. Also present were Court Reporter Becky Pearson and contractor Jon Jennings from Forgotten Stone Works in Manchester. Minutes of the October 22 meeting were read and accepted.

Creston will advertise the January 28 meeting as a public hearing on prospective changes to the Shoreland Zoning and Wireless Facilities Siting ordinances. Mr. Jennings presented a sketch and proposal to construct a field stone walk and steps over steep ground to the dock on the Dansky lot on Flying Pond (depicted on tax map 10 as lot 37-F). The existing terrain is grassed lawn. He does not expect to get to the project this year. As the Board is familiar with the site the usual site visit was waived. Table 1 of the Shoreland Zoning Ordinance (SZO) was briefly reviewed. It was not entirely clear that a permit is required for this use. It was agreed that as the field stones will require movement of less than 10 cy of material, no permit for them is required. It was agreed that the steps will require a permit as they are structural construction. Mr. Jennings presented a letter from the Danskys authorizing him to act as their agent. Based on the sketch and Mr. Jennings' representations, and its familiarity with the site, The Board determined that the project:

- (1) Will maintain safe and healthful conditions;
- (2) Will not result in water pollution, erosion, or sedimentation to surface waters and may actually reduce them;
- (3) will not involve disposal of wastewater;
- (4) Will not have an adverse impact on spawning grounds, fish, aquatic life, bird or other wildlife habitat;
- (5) Will conserve shore cover and visual, as well as actual, points of access to inland waters;
- (6) Will protect archaeological and historic resources as designated in the comprehensive
- (7) Will avoid problems associated with floodplain development and use; and
- (8) Is in conformance with the provisions of Section 15, Land Use Standards.

The Board then voted 5 - 0 to authorize Creston to issue the usual permit by letter for the The BoA meeting Creston and Waine attended Nov. 24 was briefly discussed. Waine recommended that the Planning Board become a party in the appeal (as will be required for it to present evidence, arguments, etc.) and that we have a presence (of at least one member) at the BoA's meetings. The PB's representative would not speak for the PB on new issues, new evidence, etc. but could speak from memory as to what the PB had previously decided. Ed said that he will remain recused throughout all of this. Waine asked that the PB give him latitude to sign the "Joint Stipulation" which GTP's attorney has provided, if Town Attorney Steve Langsdorf approves. The Board agreed that Waine could do this. The Board reviewed Mark Rains' e-mail outlining proposed changes to his recently approved SZO permit (see Sept. 24 minutes). As the proposed change is insubstantial it was agreed that Creston should amend the permit (not yet finalized) to include the new dimensions.

The meeting adjourned at 7:55 PM.

FROM THE HEALTH OFFICER

Income Inequality - 1/25/2015

I'm worried. Income inequality and its consequences are worsening in Maine and across the world. My colleagues and I demonstrated that phenomenon recently in our published lead article about Franklin County in the Journal of the American Medical Association⁽¹⁾. There we showed the very strong correlations of Maine counties' household income with age-adjusted ⁽²⁾ mortality. Franklin, where we implemented multiple programs to improve health, did as well as Cumberland and other affluent communities; and it was one of only 17 counties in the US that lower mortality than predicted by income. So we conclude that, unless there are concerted efforts to improve access and reduce risk factors like hypertension and high cholesterol, smoking and inactivity, people living in the vast majority of low income US counties, die at significantly higher rates than their more affluent peers.

In addition, over the 50 years we studied, the degree to which income explained county mortality differences ⁽³⁾ in Maine increased from 14% in the 1960s, to 38% during 1970-1990, and finally to 81% from 1990-2010! In other words, now 81% of the mortality differences among counties can be explained by the average household income in each county. That is a dramatic increase over 50 years.

Yet another finding in our paper about Maine counties, was that from 1960 to 1990, county household income varied only about $15,000/yr. between the most and least affluent counties. However, from 1990-2010, that difference increased to $20,000 (Fig 5 in our paper). And finally, both Franklin and Kennebec counties became poorer relative to the rest of Maine; Franklin went from 5th most affluent down to 11th, while Kennebec moved from 2nd down to 6th most affluent.

So right here in Kennebec and Franklin counties, we observed fairly rapidly increasing income disparity over the past 50 years. Since we know from our study and others that lower incomes correlate with poorer health and mortality, this is not good from a humanitarian view as well as an economic one. We demonstrate in our Franklin County study that, along with fewer deaths, the interventions were associated with substantial cost savings in hospitalization costs alone, about $5.5 million/yr.

And just recently (Jan 24), the Kennebec Journal editorialized about the need for aggressive public school actions to counteract the educational impairments created by poverty because now more than half their students are from low-income households.

Access to health care is crucial to disease prevention; for instance, physicians or other clinicians must be available to start and supervise medication use for hypertension, high cholesterol, and smoking cessation. Recent actions by the current state administration are now taking us in exactly the wrong directions. The tobacco settlement monies, previously directed by Gov. Angus King to statewide multiple smoking cessation programs modeled on the Franklin Co successful experience, are being cut and redirected elsewhere. Medicaid (MaineCare) expansion of health care coverage for the mostly working poor through the federally subsidized Affordable Care Act continues to be rejected. And where are the expanding pre-K and other educational interventions?

I despair. Someone please give me hope that we can reverse these trends, educate our children, high and low income together, and work strenuously again to prevent disability and disease, as we have showed we can. By doing so, we could save medical costs, create a healthier stronger, smarter workforce, which can better care for our increasingly elderly state. Or are we to take the Dickensian Scrooge approach to the poor: "let them die and decrease the surplus population".

The last two sections of the Dewey Classification System which we haven't mentioned are the 400s (study of language) and 900s (history & geography). Our 400 collection is small – a few

Spanish, French, or Italian dictionaries, some audios, a children's fairy tale or two. Local demand for materials on learning language is generally low. But it's good to have a few resources because knowing a bit of another language can give depth to how we hear & use our own language, and it gives us a glimpse of how others might interpret and name the world. Effective communication builds connection and understanding.

Language and history help us determine who we are in relation to others, and it gives us a sense of where we've been and, hopefully, where we could all be together in the future. If language is about communication (and we have much to talk about together), then the study of history provides the signposts of our experience which we must heed so that we are not necessarily bound to repeat it! Our history collection reflects how we try to come to terms with an often difficult or grievous past which can change our course and culture (To End All Wars, by Hochschild, 940.3; or This Republic of Suffering: Death and the American Civil War, by Faust, 973.7), and gives us a glance at pieces of our past which influence us greatly but which are not always a part of the common information handed to us (Notes on a Lost Flute: a Field Guide to the Wabanaki, by Hardy, 974.1; or Paine's The Sea and Civilization: a Maritime History of the World, 910.45). This is all so creatively written, entwined with personal stories of soldiers, sailors, explorers, laborers, and historians, which make times past come alive for us again.

Any classification system, whether it is Dewey or Library of Congress or a scientific classification of organisms, is merely a tool (often highly imperfect) to organize the chaos of information, opinion, and belief, and then hopefully help us make our way to the knowledge and wisdom we build in the process of making our lives. It lends structure & order to thought and learning, and allows us to look at it holistically, to see some connections. Then maybe it doesn't all feel quite so chaotic anymore.

A final note, speaking of organization: we now have our Maine fiction collection downstairs in the main room, come check it out. We are seeing the use of these wonderful stories go way up now that they are right in plain view. We have moved all YA (young adult) books out of the adult fiction shelves and moved them to their own space upstairs in the Dolloff room. We hope our teen readers will like having their own collection housed together, and can use that space for quiet browsing, and then perhaps spend some time sitting at the table to read a bit.

I'm reading Molly G. Manning's When Books Went to War, an account of efforts to get small cheap editions of books into the hands of soldiers during WW2. It got lots of attention from various book blogs, and I'm enjoying reading about soldiers' reactions to various titles. What are you reading as Orion journeys across the clear winter night sky?

UPDATES FROM TOM SAVIELLO

On Friday, January 9, Governor LePage unveiled his biennial budget proposal for fiscal years 2016-2017.

At <http://www.maine.gov/budget/> you can find the proposed budget, as well as documents that break down some of the major points into charts and bullet points.

On that same page, you can also find the proposed biennial highway budget and the 2015 supplemental highway budget.

The biennial budget proposal now heads to the Appropriations Committee, where lawmakers will pore over the details, crunch the numbers, and negotiate for months before presenting a final budget to the full House and Senate for a vote.

If you're interested in finding out more about Maine's budget process, you can read about it by visiting the Legislature's Office of Fiscal and Program Review website at:

UPDATES CONTINUED

As you look over the budget documents, please be in touch about your thoughts on the budget proposal. Constituent input is very important in this process. I'll be sure to keep you updated as the Appropriations Committee sets dates and times for public hearings, as well.

Bill Titles Released

In addition to the budget proposal, the full list of bill titles submitted by lawmakers was released this week. You can find it at <http://legislature.maine.gov/news/60/lists-of-legislator-bill-requests/>, where bill proposals are sorted both by sponsor and by subject matter.

At this point, many of the bills are still in 'LR' form – Legislative Request. When the full language for these titles is drafted each will be given a new number, and become an 'LD' – Legislative Document.

If there is a particular bill you are interested in following, you can search for it and track it on the Legislature's website, <http://www.legislature.maine.gov>, and clicking 'advanced search.'

MAINE LAKE SURVEY - KENNEBEC COUNTY

The Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife posts a Maine Lake Survey along with maps of all the Lakes and ponds in Maine. The following information on Boody Pond below is an example of what can be found on the site, which can be reached here.

Boody Pond - Vienna, Maine - Kennebec County

Fishes: Brook trout (squaretail), Hornpout (bullhead), Banded killifish, Minnows, Golden shiner, Creek chub

Physical Characteristics: 11 acres, Maximum depth 12 feet, Temperatures - Surface 74 ° F - 12 feet - 57 ° F.

Principal Fishery - Brook trout and minnows

Boody Pond is an isolated woodland pond northwest of Vienna Mountain, the highest elevation in Kennebec County. The beavers that frequent the pond increase the water level and make large areas of bog where the dead trunks of trees stand as sentinels. Access to this pond is via a four-wheel drive vehicle off the Kimball Pond Road. A canoe is best used for water craft at this water

The fish community found in the 1985 survey of Boody Pond consisted of hornpout, and minnows. Water quality was judged adequate for brook trout. The initial stocking of brookies took place in 1986. So far returns from these stockings have been poor possibly due to stocking technique. Future stockings will utilize four-wheel drive vehicles. Anglers who use Boody Pond are requested to assist fishery biologists in reporting their catches by contacting: The Regional Fishery - 8 Federal Street, Augusta, Maine 04330. Scroll down to see the map of Boody pond.
